

Sarah Kliff

---

Sarah Kliff is a senior editor at Vox, where she oversees health, medicine and education coverage. Sarah joined Vox Media in February 2014 from the Washington Post, where she covered health policy and was a founding writer at Wonkblog, a policy blog dedicated to making complex policy topics easily approachable and understandable.

Prior to the Washington Post, Sarah Kliff was a staff writer at Politico, also covering health policy. Her writing has appeared in Newsweek, National Geographic, the BBC and other news outlets. Her work was cited in the 2012 Supreme Court decision upholding the Affordable Care Act.

Sarah has appeared on multiple television networks including CNN, Fox News, PBS, MSNBC and C-Span. She is the recipient of fellowships from the Kaiser Family Foundation and the University of Southern California Annenberg School of Journalism. Sarah received a bachelors degree in Philosophy-Neuroscience-Psychology from Washington University in St. Louis and currently resides in Washington, D.C.